Embrace the lotus within

Everyone has a lotus within him or her; this lotus is the lotus of unconditional love, which is the core love that we are. When we are on earth, we forgotten about this beautiful love that we have. We became paranoid, lost and even think that we need love from others. In this earth, there is this duality that people are trying to get rid. As far as they go they need to clear the issue and embrace.

A lot of spiritual people understand the concept of unconditional love, in the process they tried to find it. Yet, within moments after they gotten it, they lost it. This is always the problem that people faces. So is there something called unconditional love in the first place? Yes, there is and it begins within us. Many people in the initial stage feels that love can only be felt when someone gives it to you. This is an irony. If something in life is to be given by other things, then the love is not unconditional. No one/thing can give you unconditional love in the first place. The only place that exist unconditional love is within you.

You are the source of this deep divine love and this is the empowerment that you are. There is no one in this world that can change that fact. However, people can program you not to believe in it. So we have to reach within ourselves to retrieve back this realization that we are unconditional love. We were never taken away of anything. This is also the truth. When you can love yourself for who you are, you feel more peaceful and happier too.

Why are we so critical to ourselves? Time and time, this has to do with our ability to accept ourselves for who we are. Are we the love on this earth or just another insignificant person? We are all love from this earth. This would not alter just because you feel that we are not. Go deep within you into your depths and give yourself a big hug. Tell yourself that you deserve it. You deserve to rediscover back the beautiful lotus within. When your love is provided for then you will not try to get love from others. You will also make others in your life more comfortable and able to have their own space. As we move on and continue, many people are losing their space to every person in their life. Like friends, family, relative and partners, the list goes on. So the idea is to accept and love you.

When you have learnt how to love and accept yourself, the final thing is to hold your power. There must be something that you need to stand firm about. When the time comes, just do it. Many people felt they should not do this or cannot do this. This is all the negative thinking which makes us think so. Why? This is because no one in this world can tell you what you should do or not to do. However some places on earth are already in a state of in-balance and there is a need to restore. Some organization promotes killing the enemy then to forgive them. These are areas that you do not want to put yourself in when you are in the domain of the Christ, there is no one that would tell you not to do this or that.

When we are clear and we start to embrace ourselves, we learn to open ourselves to love others and also to forgive others. Remember if you fail to forgive someone, you are also not forgiving yourself. You are always the love that you are. So by forgiving people after you understand the cause, then you will also find it easier to forgive and accept yourself. You are the lotus. I Am the love and compassion. So shall it be
